

Environmental, Health, and Safety Center. (Ref. 1) In October 2020, EPA granted the manufacturer request for risk evaluation for D4. In September 2021, EPA published and sought public comment on the draft scope of the D4 risk evaluation (Ref. 2), and, after considering public comments, issued the final scope in March 2022 (Ref. 3). These documents, other supporting documents, and public comments are in the docket at <https://www.regulations.gov>.

Additionally, in 2014, EPA issued an enforceable consent agreement (ECA) requiring five manufacturers of D4 to submit testing data to help the agency better understand the amount of D4 released into the environment and the quantity of D4 in water, sediment and aquatic organisms. The signatory companies completed the ECA testing requirements in September 2017. The information gathered by the ECA was used in conjunction with other available data to assess exposures and risks due to environmental releases from D4. The final test report can be found in multiple sections in the docket (EPA–HQ–OPPT–2012–0209).

III. Request for Comment

EPA seeks feedback on the assessment of risk presented in the draft risk evaluation for D4, a copy of which is available in the docket, and encourages all potentially interested parties, including individuals, governmental and non-governmental organizations, non-profit organizations, academic institutions, research institutions, and private sector entities to comment on the draft risk evaluation. To the extent possible, the Agency asks commenters to please cite any public data related to or that support comments provided, and to the extent permissible, describe any supporting data that is not publicly available.

EPA welcomes specific input on each section of the draft risk evaluation, particularly input on the following:

- evaluation and use of the D4 physiologically based pharmacokinetic model;
- identification of hazards relevant to human health and ecological risk assessment;
- whether and how exposure controls and personal protective equipment are used for each of the COUs;
- information on environmental release of D4, including media of release and facility-specific receiving waterbodies;
- information to inform estimates of dermal exposures for workers;

- information to inform exposures of occupational non-users in the assessment;
- handling of uncertainties associated with exposure and release assessments;
- bioaccumulation, bioconcentration, biomagnification, and potential trophic transfer, including the selection of the bioconcentration factor to estimate human exposure from fish consumption;
- consideration of aggregate exposure and risk; and,
- any other information that may inform the assumptions used for modeling each of the COUs.

IV. Next Steps

EPA will consider comments received from the public and SACC on the draft risk evaluation and will issue the final risk evaluation for D4. A separate forthcoming Federal Register notice will announce the peer review by the SACC.

Under TSCA section 6, EPA must determine in the final risk evaluation, based on the weight of scientific evidence, whether or not the chemical presents an unreasonable risk to health or the environment under the chemical's conditions of use. This includes consideration of risks to potentially exposed susceptible subpopulations (PESS) who may be at greater risks than the general population, such as children and workers. TSCA prohibits EPA from considering non-risk factors (e.g., costs/benefits) during risk evaluation.

If EPA determines that a chemical presents an unreasonable risk to health or the environment, the chemical will move to risk management action under TSCA section 6(a) for the relevant conditions of use.
