re: (Federal Maritime Commission Cancellation Rule Changes). Do these changes affect passengers that voluntarily cancelled a past cruise on their own?

My husband and I had a cruise on NCL scheduled for 4/18/20 (Res # 41601142). On Mar 16, 2020, we heard of the outbreak of the virus in Barcelona, Spain where we were departing from plus a 2 night stay pre cruise. We called to cancel and we're given a FCC. Needless to say, our cruise was cancelled by NCL a few weeks later. We were told by NCL that a cash refund for my husband and I ($7368.00) was not possible as we cancelled first. If we had waited until they cancelled, we would have received a full cash refund.

We have rescheduled for a future cruise on 10/2021 but considering our age and underlining health issues, we feel cruising may not be our means of traveling.

They have held our money a year and 1/2 and unless we reschedule we lose our refund.

Do we have any recourse in this situation?

My husband and I appreciate your assistance in this area and any advice you may have.

Thank you,

Dale & Deborah Hoffman
